The chimpanzees of the Kibale Forest is the first stop, where we'll undertake three sorties to observe and photograph them. Primate Lodge is the perfect base for this, set deep within the Kibale National Park, home to 13 species of primates and over 375 species of birds. The Chimpanzees are irrefutably the star attraction and tracking them down on foot remains amongst the most rewarding challenges in Africa.

The savannah of the wild Ishasha Sector of the Queen Elizabeth National Park - famed for its tree climbing lions - is next. Ishasha Wilderness Camp is arguably Uganda's finest safari camp, and wildlife watching here will primarily be from two safari vehicles, from which there are excellent chances to encounter giant forest hog, elephants, leopard and Uganda Kob, amongst a plethora of savannah mammals and birds.

Two days gorilla trekking in the Bwindi Impenetrable Forest serves as the safari's pièce de résistance. Unquestionably one of the great tourism conservation stories of the last thirty years, encountering these Great Apes at close proximity is a profound experience. Buhoma Lodge is one of only two in the National Park, it is an intimate and charming property with commanding views across the forest.

Space is limited to just six participants

Your Guides:

Kate Humble is an inveterate traveller who grew up around farms and wildlife.

Known to millions as the much-loved British TV presenter specializing in nature programs, Kate has written seven books and innumerable travel articles and is deeply involved with several UK conservation organisations, including The Wildlife Trust, RSPB, and The Marine Conservation Society.

With her bubbly but informative nature, Kate imparts her enormous knowledge in a fun and engaging manner.

Paul Joynson Hicks

Paul is a first-class photographer and guide who has spent the last twenty years living and working in East and Central Africa. He has published coffee table books on Uganda, Tanzania, and Zambia, demonstrating the breadth of his knowledge and diversity of experiences. A charismatic and fun companion, Paul is a superb photography tutor, whether you're snapping on an iPhone, film, or full-frame digital.
